Meet the Team – Lindsay Valecorte, Customer Lifecycle Director

At Storm Master Exteriors, we believe that every customer relationship should last far beyond the completion of a project. Helping make that vision a reality is Lindsay Valecorte, our Customer Lifecycle Director.

Lindsay joined the Storm Master Exteriors family two years ago, bringing with her more than 25 years of marketing and customer relationship experience. Throughout her career, she has learned that the strongest companies are built on trust, communication, and genuine relationships—and that's exactly what she found at Storm Master Exteriors.

What makes Storm Master Exteriors different?

According to Lindsay, we put our customers first.

Every roofing, siding, window, or gutter project is completed with the same care and attention we would give our own homes. We don't believe our job ends when the last piece of material is installed. Instead, we believe every customer gains a lifelong partner who is here to help protect and maintain one of their biggest investments for years to come.

One of the things Lindsay appreciates most is Storm Master Exteriors' commitment to building lasting relationships—not only with our customers, but also with our team members, installation crews, business partners, and the communities we proudly serve.

She believes that our culture is what truly sets us apart.

At Storm Master Exteriors, people always come first.

Our decisions aren't driven solely by profitability or growth. We believe success is measured by the relationships we build, the trust we earn, and the positive impact we have on the lives of others. Every decision is made with humanity in mind, always considering what is in the best interest of our customers, our employees, and our community.

Lindsay is proud to be part of a company where integrity isn't just something we talk about—it's something we practice every day.

Her passion for customer care, relationship building, and creating exceptional experiences helps ensure that every homeowner feels valued, informed, and supported from the first phone call through the life of their home.

Thank you, Lindsay, for helping us create lifelong relationships and for reminding us every day that people will always be our greatest investment.

Storm Master Exteriors
Building Strong Homes. Building Stronger Communities.
Relationships First. Always.